TOUGH PROBLEM. TOUGH SOLUTION.

Nova-Thene®. The lumber wrap that goes all the way.

Nova-Thene protects more than your product. It protects your bottom line by wrapping lumber faster and more effectively. For over three years major North American mills have chosen this tough, woven, all-synthetic material to keep kiln-dried lumber in top condition all the way to market. If you've had enough of lumber wraps that rip, soak up water, curl and only do half a job, you should take a look at Nova-Thene—the wrap that's tough enough to go all the way.

More wraps per roll

Larger rolls of lightweight Nova-Thene cut changeover time.

Greater tear resistance More than twice as strong as paperbacked wraps. Resists tears, punctures, staple rips.

Faster application Nova-Thene lies flat; folds easily to make a neater package, faster.

Better protection Nova-Thene has no paper content; it's stronger and weather-resistant.

New anti-skid surface available Special surface treatment reduces slipping.

Brighter printing Four color printing is fade-resistant, long-lasting.

Dedicated services The Nova-Thene manufacturing process is totally integrated. Depend on us for reliable deliveries.

when the prices are good.

Last year's price charts will tell you — if you could have kept from buying lumber just during those few weeks of the year when the price got way out of line — you could easily have cut your lumber costs.

So this year, why not lock in a price when the price is right? Random length lumber futures and options from the Chicago Mercantile Exchange make it easier to protect yourself. Easier to price lumber when the getting is good. Easier to take advantage of favorable price moves — without having to make room for more actual inventory.

Today, random length lumber futures and options are also being used by many smart lumber dealers who use forward priced lumber as a selling tool — to help their customers plan ahead.

Get the whole story from your commodities broker. Or call The Merc, toll-free, for our free brochure, "An Introductory Hedge Guide to Random Length Lumber Futures and Options."

Why is this Rotary Air Seal standard equipment on all Brunette Debarkers?

Because we know you want reliable, automatic, high-speed, clean debarking of logs, no matter what the mix—size, shape or species. And with Brunette's rotary air seal debarkers—that's what you get.

Abrader arms that open automatically to avoid end damage. Finger tip pressure control for clean debarking, no matter what the log species, i.e. soft or hardwood, or whether frozen or crooked. Just a few of the benefits that add up to greater productivity, longer debarker life, less maintenance—and greater profits for you.

Get all the facts about Brunette debarkers and our patented rotary air seal. We insist upon quality, and we don't think you should settle for less.

For more information write or call Jim Northey or John Whitehead.

Originally patented by Brunette 1960 and subsequently improved and protected by existing patents.

PORTABLE DEBARKING SYSTEMS

FIRST, WE LISTEN.

Most manufacturers of sawmill process control systems try to make your problems fit their canned solutions.

At Inovec, we listen carefully to what you need and want. Then, we design your system, using customized software, standard hardware and computerized hydraulic linear positioners. Plus, we mock-up and pretest the total system, to guarantee that it is truly tailored to solve your mill's problems.

That means you don't end up paying for more than you want, or get less than you need.

A dark kiln was okay as long as there was nothing but black kiln sealers!

But we're out of the Dark Ages! Now you can wrap your dry kiln interior in bright reflective aluminum. SILVERLINER Liquid Metallic Sealer keeps heat in the kiln instead of letting it escape through the kiln walls. You cut heat loss up to 10% for big fuel savings. You dry lumber faster—better with more even controlled heat.

General Kinematics

De-Stoner ConveyorHog Fuel—cost-efficient removal of stones, metalics, other contaminants

Vibratory De-Stoner units now operating in hog fuel applications are producing dramatic cost-efficiency and thoroughness. Adaptable for a wide range of clean up jobs—chips, bark, sawdust, or other process materials. Unique fluidizing action combined with high velocity air curtains separates and classifies material of different density or particle size with minimum product loss.

- For pulp mill, wood yard, bio-fuel, wafer or particleboard applications.
- Energy efficient design - total system uses less than 25 HP.
- Virtually jam-proof. Fully adjustable to handle a wide variety of products.
- Reliable balanced Syncro-Coil® natural frequency conveyor construction.

SAWS

All you'll ever need to know on saw selection, operation, maintenance:

Ed Williston's complete manual for all types of saws in all types of mills.

Despite the on-rush of technology, the saw remains the heart of every sawmill and has enormous effect on product quality and profit of the entire operation. SAWS is the first complete reference manual on all types of saws and sawing. But it is more than a reference. It is designed as a day-in, day-out working tool and not just for the saw filer.

The book's 288 pages, 102 figures, 64 photos and 58 tables start out with the composition, design, manufacture and properties of saws, cover the installation and operation of band and circular headsaws, scraggs, frame and gangsaws, edgers and resaws, circular rip-saws, motors and feedworks, tensioning, filing and maintenance, and conclude with the newest developments in high-frequency hardening and stellite facing. Truly, everything you need to know from buying a blade to aligning the headrig carriage.

Quality Control IN LUMBER MANUFACTURING

Edited by TERENCE D. BROWN

Terry Brown's goal in Quality Control in Lumber Manufacturing is to help mills reduce losses and eliminate waste. Together with 15 leading industry experts he has written a "how-to" guide for starting or improving lumber quality control programs.

Brown and his experts show you how quality control can save money in every operation, from woods through shipping. They present efficient, standardized procedures and useful tools for controlling lumber size, monitoring machinery and evaluating personnel performance.

The book goes step-by-step through the manufacturing process, clearly explaining how raw material and product value can be maximized at each stage:

Starting up: QC systems; the successful QC supervisor; preparing meaningful information for management and mill personnel

Operator training and performance evaluation: Effective training methods; putting performance in dollar terms; grade training programs

Machine center evaluation and maintenance: For woods, mill, drying, planing, shipping operations

Lumber size control: Setting target sizes; measurement methods; evaluation techniques; programmable calculator programs;

finding machine center problems; saw filing
Finished lumber evaluation: Degrade analysis; quality assurance programs in the mill
Quality control in action: Case studies of programs in operation

The useful, practical information in this book is designed to help owners, managers, superintendents and quality control personnel run effective and comprehensive lumber quality control programs.

About the editor

Terry Brown's knowledge of lumber quality control, combined with that of people responsible for successful QC programs, forms the foundation of this uniquely practical book. Extension Forest Products Specialist and Associate Professor at Oregon State University, Brown established the first lumber quality and process control short courses with the help of professionals in the industry in 1976. Brown designs other training programs and provides technical assistance in such areas as QC planning, drying, yard operations and energy. He is also a consultant who helps mills solve problems and improve processing methods. A frequent speaker at industry conferences, Brown holds a BS and a PhD in wood science and technology from Colorado State University.

challenges of cyclic markets:

OPERATIONS MANAGEMENT in the Forest Products Industry

By Richard F. Baldwin

Manufacturing forest products profitably has never been easy, and industry trends indicate it is becoming ever more management- and capital-intensive. How do the successful firms grow and prosper, and how does the industry cope with the cyclic business environment?

Richard F. (Dick) Baldwin provides answers to these questions learned from his almost 30 years of industry experience as a foreman, industrial plant engineer, general superintendent, general manager, operations manager and regional vice president.

The answers seem to lie more in attitudes and thought processes than in ready resources and markets. Often the successful entrepreneur chooses to accept scarce and expensive resources combined with limited capital and a hostile business environment as challenges and opportunities rather than as barriers and problems.

OPERATIONS MANAGEMENT features success stories. Practical, time-tested management concepts are shown in action rather than theorized. Many concepts are relevant across the various forest products businesses, as increased automation, new technology and the geographic decentralization of facilities are blurring the distinctions in the manufacturing process from product to product.

At a time when rising costs, gut-wrenching downturns, and apparent raw material shortages have taken their toll, OPERATIONS MANAGEMENT offers hands-on guidance. Covering both technical and management concerns, it's an active reference for supervisors, operations managers, and executives involved in manufacturing softwood lumber, plywood and reconstituted products.

M-K's Rotary Hog:

Rugged Rotary Shear Action

with

Inertial Energy

A Cost-Effective, Energy Efficient Design That Saves You Both Operating and Maintenance Costs

The M-K Rotary Hog is unique, designed from the ground up to be a profit builder.

Take the heavy rotor. It's engineered to save you two ways; one, the rotor weight has the flywheel effect of saving power consumption; and two, it provides the stored kinetic energy needed to smoothly handle highly varied surges in feed materials. This unique helix rotor develops a "scissors effect" that routinely shears even those difficult materials such as stringy bark, and occasional rocks.

Take the built-in economy. M-K's rotary hog brings ease of maintenance on normally maintenance-intensive machinery. Here's great dependability . . . high availability. The few moving parts reflect another savings — low parts inventory. Lower power requirements per unit of weight compound your savings.

Take the simple design. Those high-wear parts such as the striker plates and extra hard casing liner plates can be easily replaced by the operating crews. M-K Rotary Hogs can be used as mobile yard clean-up units or installed for plant operation.

Economy . . . simplicity . . . productivity. There's your profit.

Over half the worlds fiberboard is produced by Sunds Defibrator equipment and we're still growing

Fiberboard expertise is nothing new at Sunds Defibrator. Since we developed our first Defibrator unit back in 1933, we've supplied thousands of individual units and several hundred production lines for both wet and dry process fiberboard mills throughout the world.

This includes medium density fiberboard (MDF), insulation board, hardboard and molded products. In fact, more than half of the world's total fiberboard output is produced by Sunds Defibrator equipment. MDF alone is over 80%. And as the number of applications grow, so do we.

This growth has been made possible through our ongoing research and development programs, where we can simulate your production processes at our pilot plants.

Our new generation Defibrators, up to 60" in diameter, currently provide the highest production capacities in the industry and continue to set production records. To achieve these kinds of efficiencies, we have introduced such technological advancements as a new feed system, a new packing box and improvements in steam recovery. The results are improved performance, reduced energy consumption, lower steam requirements, reduced manpower and a decrease in downtime, service and maintenance requirements. This kind of performance you can bring to the bottom line.
